And that's a promise we'll put in writing. Because from the day we start digging your pool till the day of completion, we need just 45 days to finish the entire job. And, lots of times, we'll be through even sooner.

What's more, if you happen to be looking for an unusual design, we can help you there too. One of East Coast Pools' salesmen will be glad to sit down with you and create a custom design. It won't cost you a cent extra. And we'll still build it in 45 days.

You see, we've become one of the fastest growing pool companies in South Florida by giving people exactly what they want. And that means building a quality pool at a fair price, finishing it when we say we will, and then, after we've completed the job, coming back whenever you need us.

So all you have to do now is to figure out which shape you like and then give us a call. Just think, if you like what we have to say, 45 days after we start, you and your family could be getting into really great shape as you swim in your own pool.

Michael Conrad won an Emmy for his performance in th 'Hill Street Blues' episode in which Sgt. Phil Esterhaus almost married his teen-age sweetheart (Lisa Lindgren).

'Hill Street' sergeant no longer sings blues

By Jerry Buck
The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — In late 1979 Michael Conrad got a c from a producer friend who asked him to keep the followi March clear for a show called "Hill Street Station."

The call came from Steven Bochco, who had created a produced another police series, Delvecchio, in which Conr had a starring role.

"We had good chemistry and we laughed a lot," sa Conrad. "So I asked him what kind of a part it was. He j said to the effect he was a police sergeant who'd been out the street too many years and was burned out. Everyb knows he's burned out, but they value his expertise. But never goes out on the street. He gets edgy if he even thi about it."

When March rolled around, he took the role of Sgt. P Esterhaus in what is now called Hill Street Blues, co-crea by Bochco and Michael Kozoll. The character was tailored Conrad. Last September when the NBC series won unprecedented eight Emmys, one of them went to Conrad best supporting actor in a drama series.

Esterhaus is usually an island of serenity amidst the ch that grips the Hill Street station. The policemen are tryin cope with the crime in the blighted ghetto area surround the station — and going just a little bit crazy because it's impossible job. Esterhaus has not been totally out of act however, and has been carrying on a sizzling affair with Grace Gardner (Barbara Babcock).

"His private life is strictly from the fantasies of the writers," says Conrad, a 6-foot-4 actor who spent most of his career playing what he calls "physical roles."

"Of course, I have a wife 25 years younger and they know I've done all right with the ladies. But I'd never played a ladies man before so they kind of played around with that. It can be a bit much. The pilot said Phil Esterhaus was a man 48 years old with a 17-year-old girlfriend named Cindy. It's highly improbable, but possible."

The episode that won him the Emmy was the one that nearly took him to the altar with Cindy. Grace broke up the wedding-to-be right in the church, and since then it's been nude horseback riding, leather sheets and hot oil rubs.

Conrad was born in New York City the son of a career Army man, and he served in the artillery during World War II.

"I was brought up surrounded by women and it's had an enormous affect on my life," he says. "I'm very comfortable with women. The women I grew up with were very strong women. They didn't treat me like a little boy. I was the man."

When he got out of the Army he went to City College of New York and studied drama at the Dramatic Workshop of the New School. He did some summer stock and was in the national tours of A Streetcar Named Desire and Mr. Roberts.

"I couldn't make a living as an actor until I was 33," he says. "I always did something else. Whenever I couldn't get work as an actor I went out and got another job. But I knew that if I stuck with it some day I would make it. I loved the work so much. And I didn't have a lot of middle class values to support so I could skimp by."

He also found sustenance working on such New York shows as Naked City and The Defenders. He traveled to Louisiana for a guest shot on one of the first Route 66 episodes.

Conrad, who moved to Los Angeles in 1963, says, "I got disenchanted with the theater, the arts. It becomes very boring."

The first thing he did was a guest spot on Wagon Train. Frequently, he was the bad guy. He was the football coach in The Longest Yard, and was in the movies Castle Keep and They Shoot Horses, Don't They?

There is no better example of the indestructibility of a popular sitcom character than the continued success of CBS' 'Archie Bunker's Place,' starring Carroll O'Connor (far left). And, another sitcom that will not die is 'Taxi.' The show, starring Judd Hirsch (left), was canceled by ABC, but will come back to life this fall on NBC.

King comedy now emperor

By Bill Kelley
Television Writer

Early in 1981, at an advertising convention in Boca Raton, CBS Broadcast President Gene F. Jankowski declared, "If it was once true that comedy is king, now he is emperor." Though time is sometimes cruel to the predictions of TV executives, the passing year has not been unkind to Jankowski.

Comedy has been the salvation not only of top-rated CBS, but also ABC and even struggling NBC, all of which have once more pinned their hopes on situation comedies and escapist adventures after a disastrous fling with cop shows and dramas. Experimentation is no word for the philosophy behind network programming — yet it is true that last season's shift to hard-nosed dramas was a genuine gamble. And a resounding failure.

The sitcom is the one prime time format that is nurtured by trends, not dependent upon them. Whether the public taste in a given year leans toward slapstick or mildly sophisticated humor, the structure of a sitcom remains essentially the same from season to season. It lasts no more than 30 minutes, its gags build to brief climaxes separated by commercials, and its closing credits are preceded by one final — usually verbal — joke delivered by the episode's principals in less than a minute.

America's growing conservatism, wrongly interpreted to indicate a desire for virile heroes and role models in prime time, has actually enriched the market for TV comedy. The axiom is simple: when times are bad people want to escape.

Last season, there was no better illustration of the indestructibility of a popular sitcom character than the continued success of Archie Bunker's Place, CBS' watered-down continuation of the once-revered All in the Family. This fall, there will be an even better example — Archie is to be followed on Sunday nights by Gloria, a sitcom chronicling his now-divorced daughter's misadventures as a veterinarian's assistant.

During the current Los Angeles press preview of the fall TV season, much attention has been paid to what NBC's talented new chairman, Grant Tinker, will do to buff up the image tarnished by his predecessor, Fred Silverman. The best example of the differences in the two men's creative instinct is the contrast in the comedies they sanctioned. Silverman gave NBC Diff'rent Strokes and The Facts of Life. This fall, Tinker's staff will introduce Cheers and Family Ties (from creative personnel who have worked on the respected Taxi and Lou Grant programs), along with new episodes of Taxi.

The trend toward comedy — and its closest relation, escapist adventure — is even reflected in returning dramas. A CBS cop show, Cagney and Lacey, has been softened to make its characters appear less brusque (this includes the firing of one of the program's stars, Meg Foster). Meanwhile, NBC's The Devlin Connection, which was set for last season but delayed when star Rock Hudson underwent heart surgery, has been transformed from an action melodrama to an elegant mystery sparked by urbane humor.

Despite the dominance of comedy, devotees of suspense and drama need not give up hope. These will continue to be the primary focus of made-for-television movies.

Actor Richard Thomas (The Waltons) summed it up: "Sitcoms are more popular than ever, but comedy doesn't seem to play very well in a two-hour movie of the week. It's hard to sustain the rhythm and the humor for that length of time, with commercials."

Law-and-order shows kicked out by sitcoms

By Fred Rothenberg

NEW YORK — Growing conservatism didn't mean Americans wanted to watch cops chase robbers every night on television. So, that lesson learned, the networks' fall schedules will lean heavily on comedy and action-adventure.

By nearly any measure, the 1981-82 season was a failure. Most new shows were canceled and the networks lost 1 million viewers. Additionally, no new program was successful enough to be copied.

In fact, the only entertainment vehicle flattered by imitations next fall will be Raiders of the Lost Ark, a big box-office adventure movie.

What happened?

"Magnum was the most successful show in the previous season, and we thought people wanted more of it," says Harvey Shepard, CBS' chief programmer.

So what the networks offered were law-and-order shows with old stars like James Arness, Robert Stack and Mike Connors.

"The government was more conservative, and we thought the public was in the mood for it," Shepard adds. "Obviously it was a mistake."

Magnum, played by pin-up boy Tom Selleck, is a private investigator who doesn't take himself too seriously. But what the programmers learned was that if the public, primarily women, likes Selleck, it didn't mean audiences would appreciate tired beefcake like Arness, Stack and Connors.

So now the networks are trying something new. For fall, ABC, NBC and CBS have opted for escape rather than capture with 10 new comedies and several light-hearted dramatic series, three of which resemble Raiders — ABC's Brass Monkey, NBC's Knight Rider and CBS' Bring 'Em Back Alive.

"Nobody says CPAs (certified public accountants) are in, so next year, let's have more CPAs," says Bud Grant, president of CBS Entertainment. "One year, Dallas became a big hit, and a trend was established. So we had Dynasty, Flamingo Road and some others. It's the hits that really establish the trends."

There will be a trend-maker of sorts from this season's TV fare.

By both critical and ratings measurements, NBC's Hill Street Blues became a bona fide hit in its second year.

One of three fall TV shows resembling the box office hit 'Raiders of the Lost Ark' will be 'The Brass Monkey,' starring Stephen Collins (right), Jeff MacKay and Caitlin O'Heaney.

Next season, NBC will offer St. Elsewhere, a realistic hospital drama that resembles Hill Street in its ensemble cast and expected style and realism.

What elevates Hill Street is clever writing and full-bodied characters, who ooze humanity, flaws and feelings. The audience likes some, hates others, but can't be indifferent to any.

Hill Street, which has its final original episode of the season tonight, was the result of a rare TV deal: Then-NBC President Fred Silverman gave producers Steven Bochco and Michael Kozoll a free hand to develop their program.

"Hill Street Blues is as good as it is because we built it from the inside out, and NBC doesn't meddle with us," says Bochco. "The networks would be better off telling creative people to do exactly what they want to do."

Of the three networks, NBC seems to be moving the most in that direction. Grant Tinker, the new NBC chairman, was head of MTM Productions when it helped create Hill Street Blues. He has attracted some of Hollywood's top writers to NBC.

So, while ABC has canceled Taxi, NBC has Taxi's production team for the comedy Cheers this fall. And, while CBS has canceled Lou Grant, NBC has one of its original producers to do another comedy, Family Ties.

Neither show is about cops.

Fred Rothenberg is a television writer for The Associated Press.

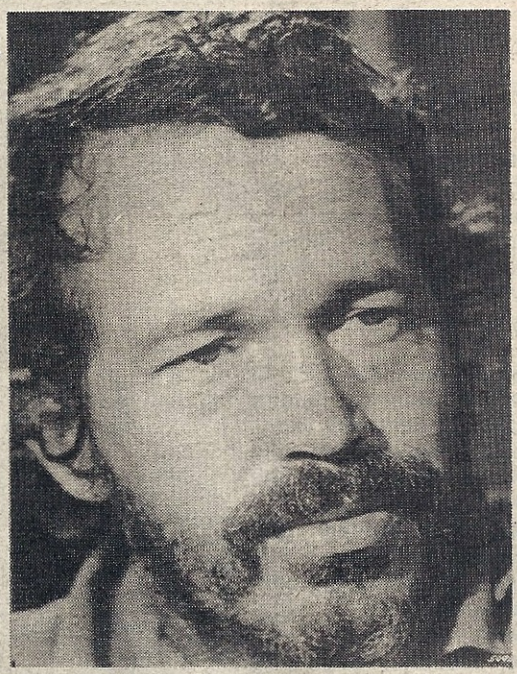
Bill Kelley's best bets



Warren Oates turns in a superb performance in 'The Hired Hand' 11:30 p.m. Saturday, Ch. 4.

We have to grant this week's array of movies this much: It's a lineup sparked by variety.

1962's Tarzan Goes To India (1:30 p.m. Sunday, Ch. 6) is not the sort of film to leave a void in your movie viewing history if you've never seen it. But with tall, lanky, trimly muscular Jock Mahoney (a former stuntman) in the lead, it signaled a break from the beefcake sagas of past years. High production values too, and direction by John Guillermin, who made the best of the earlier Tarzans (Tarzan's Greatest Adventure) and years later, The Towering Inferno.

1979's The Jericho Mile (Midnight Monday, Chs. 10 and 12), one of the best TV movies of the 1970s, stars Peter Strauss as an embittered convict whose sole outlet is running — at which he proves extraordinary. Will he allow prison officials to goad him into the Olympic trials? The resolution of this Emmy-winning drama (shot at Folsom Prison) is mature and uncompromising. With Ed Lauter. Directed by Michael Mann (Thief).

1962's Lonely Are the Brave (Noon Wednesday, Ch. 6) is an allegorical saga of an inevitably doomed, on-the-lam modern cowboy (Kirk Douglas in another martyr role). It is something of a gravely serious Electric Horseman, done almost 20 years earlier. It may be pretentious, but its ending is genuinely moving, and the performances — by Douglas, Gena Rowlands, Walter Matthau — make it worth seeing all by themselves.

1956's Invasion of the Body Snatchers (8 p.m. Thursday, Ch. 6), director Don Siegel's deservedly revered, subtle masterpiece about the unseen alien invasion of a small California town, is a classic of paranoia. Whether you take the film's subtext as a 1950s warning against commie infiltration or a slam at apathy in the McCarthy witchhunts, the film is leagues ahead of 1978's big budget remake. With Kevin McCarthy.

1971's The Hired Hand (11:30 p.m. Saturday, Ch. 4) stars and was the first movie directed by Peter Fonda. It's a western, and he plays a drifter returning to his wife and child after deserting them years earlier. The film's evocation of the old west, its confident pacing, and the superb acting — especially from Warren Oates, as Fonda's partner — were the last things anyone expected from the co-star of Easy Rider. With Verna Bloom.

ore romance in store r hero and his lawyer

ssociated Press

OS ANGELES — Connie cca plays a lawyer in 's The Greatest American . And the suit that gives trouble is not found in a t of law.

he suit is red, trimmed black and white, and n it's worn by her friend Ralph — portrayed William Katt — it gives superhuman powers.

ut he unfortunately lost instructions, and when he s like a bird, it's more ly to be a gooney bird.

Always at Katt's side is d-nosed FBI agent Bill xwell, played by Robert p, who wants to use The eatest American Hero as personal weapon against ry sinister force he can k of. In short, to Pam vidson, Miss Sellecca's aracter, the suit is a pain in neck.

"In the first season, Pam ined and complained about w the suit destroyed her life d plans," she said. "I felt e was too whiny. In the ason just ending we tried to t her more involved. But th Ralph bouncing bullets f his chest, with Maxwell d his gun, Pam has no pro-ction."

Miss Sellecca, however, s a solution. "I wanted to do show where I put the suit on. wanted to do it when I was egnant. I couldn't talk them to it."

Her pregnancy caused her spend most of the first eason hiding behind some-hing or being photographed rom the neck up. Miss Sellec-a is married to actor Gil erard, who starred in Buck Rogers.

"I missed the first five hows of this season, but I was o have telephone conversa-ions on two of them," she aid. "The day I was to go in o film one I went into labor. I as supposed to be at work at :30 a.m., but Gil called the ssistant director at 3 a.m.

and said I wouldn't be there."

She didn't go back to work until her son, Gib, was 5 weeks old. Then, she had him on the set every day because she breast fed him.

During her vacation from the series this summer she said she may pass up all offers to do movies and rest and spend more time with her son. She recently got her certification as a scuba diver and said she hopes to do some diving around the Caribbean islands.

Miss Sellecca, who was raised in upstate New York, made her film debut in Bermuda Depths. That was also where she first learned to dive. Next, she was in the series Flying High, which lasted only a few months, and in another series, Beyond Westworld, which disappeared even faster. She also has starred in such TV movies as She's Dressed to Kill and Captain America.

Next season, when The Greatest American Hero moves to 9 p.m., she believes that more of a romance will develop between Pam and Ralph.

"Maybe you will see Pam in her pajamas at Ralph's house," she said. "When we were on at 8 p.m., we could never show that Pam and Ralph slept together or that she even kept an extra sweater at his house. We had to keep putting in scenes showing Ralph calling her on the phone so that people would know they were staying together."

Better Business Bureau Of South Florida

Correspondent Fred Briggs (right) talks with paraplegic Gregory Harden on the NBC Reports special 'For Every Violence — There is a Victim' (10 p.m. Saturday, Chs. 5 & 7). The documentary examines the costs of violent crime in America, focusing on the price paid by victims and their families. Harden was chased by three youths and shot eight times, once in the spine, when he was walking toward his apartment on Chicago's South Side.

IF YOU PLAY HIDE & SEEK WITH YOUR BANK ACCOUNT LOCATIONS . . . CHANCES ARE YOUR RICH UNCLE WILL GET RICHER . . . INSTEAD OF YOUR HEIRS!

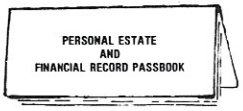
OVER $24 MILLION DOLLARS IN UNCLAIMED BANK ACCOUNTS CURRENTLY EXIST IN FLORIDA. THE WALL STREET JOURNAL ESTIMATES THE NATIONAL FIGURE TO BE $1 BILLION DOLLARS A YEAR. THESE ACCOUNTS END UP IN GOVERNMENT COFFERS BECAUSE SURVIVING HEIRS DON'T KNOW THEY EXIST.

Even if you're lucky enough to have a will (and 50% of Americans don't) wills don't usually include such specific information as the number and locations of Bank Accounts, Retirement Funds, Securities, Investments, Insurance Policies etc. . . . But if you don't let your relatives or friends know they exist, and where, they go unclaimed and your rich uncle gets even richer.

Many of us are understandably reluctant to reveal private financial details to relatives or heirs while we're healthy and alive. Now you can solve this problem while still protecting your privacy . . . and eliminate the fear, frustration, expense and inconvenience that face uninformed loved-ones trying to unravel your financial affairs.

For only $6.95 we'll send you a compact 18 pg. PERSONAL ESTATE AND FINANCIAL RECORD PASSBOOK. This passbook enables you to keep a permanent updated list of critical information that is vital to those responsible for settling your estate.

- •BANK ACCOUNTS
- •INVESTMENTS
- •INSURANCE POLICIES
- •RETIREMENT FUNDS



- •WILL/EXECUTOR
- •LAWYER
- •CLERGYMAN
- •SURVIVORS

You should keep this FINANCIAL RECORD PASSBOOK in a safe . . . but accessible place. If you have a will it would be wise to order a second Passbook that can be kept in confidence by your lawyer.

Order now and eliminate the chance of forcing your loved-ones to play hide and seek with your hard-earned savings . . . remember your rich uncle is already rich enough!

If you are not completely satisfied after inspection, you may return your passbook within 10 days for a full refund. Please allow 4-6 weeks for delivery.

It's also a thoughtful gift for friends and relatives.

A piece of wood called a "two-by-four" is really NOT two inches by four inches. Its actual size is one-and-five-eighths inches thick by three-and-five-eighths inches wide. The reason is that lumber is measured before it's seasoned and planed, so finished boards are smaller than the dimensions .

Contrary to popular opinion, bagpipes did NOT originate in Scotland, but in the Middle East.

The expression "long in the tooth"— meaning someone who is old — came from the fact that as horses get older their teeth do indeed grow longer.

Surprisingly, the U.S. state that gets the most rain is — of all places — Hawaii, which averages about 70 inches of rain a year.

And here's another interesting fact I bet you didn't know. We are now open until 3 AM Monday thru Saturday and 12-12 on Sunday for your shopping convenience. Service hours — 7 AM to 3 AM Mon, thru FRi.
